Car Manufacturers Hope For Another Big Year In 1950

Detroit — The automotive industry had its best year in 1949 in production, sales and profits. The industry's previous all-time record output of $5,358,420 and trucks, set in 1929, went by the board. By just how much will not be known until official figures are released in mid-January, but the final total is expected to be over 6,000,000. The 1950 outlook is for nearly many new cars and trucks as 1949, barring a general business slump or other unforeseen developments. In fact, many industry experts are forecasting production of close to 8,000,000 new passenger cars in the first half of 1950 — about 100,000 more than in the first half of 1949. These expectations are based on production cutbacks in late 1949 — due to the steel strike and changeovers to 1950 models — and a continued heavy demand for the public for new cars. These same factors dimmed prospects for any early substantial price cuts, which had been forecast for the latter part of 1949 but failed to develop.

There were some small reductions by major manufacturers, including Ford and General Motors, early in 1949, but not on the scale that had been predicted. General Motors also cut the prices on its automatic transmissions by $25 to $40, and similar reductions were made by two companies using its Hydramatic equipment. But expected steel price increases to meet the cost of new pension plans will be reflected in the production cost of automobiles, further dimming prospects of lower car prices.

The direct effect of the steel strike on automobile production still is a matter of considerable debate. More than half the industry's capacity was shut down from 10 days to two weeks, starting Thanksgiving day, with the steel shortage being given as the reason by most manufacturers. However, the shutdown came at a time when many auto makers were closing out production of 1949 models and switching over to 1950's. Some in the industry say that if there had been no steel shortage, model changeovers would have been given as the reason for the shutdowns. The shutdowns also came at a time when sales normally drop off, although this time demand actually was stimulated—possibly by fears that deliveries might be delayed. Most companies had record net profits as a result of the peak production and sales. Earnings for the first nine months of 1949, compared with the like 1948 period, included: General Motors, $502,414,029 compared with $327,115,222 last year, Chrysler, $97,651,453 against $59,887,601, and Studebaker, $17,242,245 against $13,392,724. The family-controlled Ford company does not issue interim earnings reports.

However, Kaiser-Frazer and Crosley had production declines. Kaiser-Frazer's output dropped from 181,317 in 1948 to less than 60,000 in 1949. Crosley's production was nearly 30,000 in 1948 but less than 10,000 in 1949. There were relatively few design changes in 1949, although there were more automatic transmissions and high compression engines. Automatic transmissions in the low price field will be a development of 1950, with Chevrolet offering a torque converter with its 1950 models in early January and Ford planning a torque converter transmission for introduction next summer.

New Journalism Building For U. K.

University of Kentucky trustees last week approved a low base bid of $422,165 by the Hargett Construction Company of Lexington for erection of a new journalism-publications building and recommended acceptance of the bid by the State Building Commission. The proposed new structure will house the Department of Journalism, the printing plant of the student newspapers, offices of all student publications, and the central office of the Kentucky Press Association. Half the cost of the building will be paid with accumulated profits of the newspaper and the remainder is to be financed through the sale of revenue bonds to be retired from future profits.

TWIN METERS OUT

Washington — (AP) — It soon became apparent why the low bidder on a parking meter contract was the low bidder. He proposed to install "twin" meters controlling parking in two spaces.

The District of Columbia Commissioners didn't like the idea. Confusing to the public, they said, and if one broke the District would lose double revenue. The District Contract Board ruled, however, that the manufacturer had met the specifications and it would be illegal to award the contract to the next lowest bidder. The commissioners fixed that. They rewrote the specifications.

FIREMAN MOVES FIRE

Wurtsboro, N. C. — (AP) — When water couldn't be brought to a fire a daring fireman took the fire to water.

The Wurtsboro fire truck dashed a half mile up Wurtsboro Mountain and found a truck loaded with excelsior ablaze. Insufficient water was available to fight it.

Leaping into the blazing truck's hot seat, Fireman Duke Semonite sped down the mountain. He parked beside the village hydrant. The fire was extinguished in a few minutes.

Champions Are Reluctant To Put Titles On Line

By Frank Eck
New York — What boxing needs is a shot in the arm, preferably a fighting champion like the old Joe Louis.

Although 12 championship fights were held the champions appeared more willing to engage in non-title bouts, being very cautious about laying their crowns on the line.

Louis retired officially as heavyweight champion in March but after Ezzard Charles outpointed Jersey Joe Walcott in Chicago for the National Boxing Association title, Louis returned for a series of some 20 exhibition bouts.

"I ain't rich and I ain't poor," was Louis' best reason for returning to the ring. It led boxing experts to believe that the Brown Bomber, who had been champion since 1937, needed ready cash. He denied any intentions of again fighting for the title.

Charles was accepted as the new champion excepts in New York state where the boxing commission felt that a series of heavyweight bouts would be the best way to get a new heavyweight ruler. Oddly enough, Charles defended his title here by stopping Gus Lesnevich, ex-light heavy champ, in seven rounds in Yankee Stadium. Later Charles stopped Pat Valentino in eight rounds in a title bout in San Francisco.

Mike Jacobs, the promoter who paved the way for Louis' fame, retired because of illness two months after Louis "hung up his gloves." In hardly any time at all the International Boxing Club, headed by Jim Norris, took over and promoted in partnership with Madison Square Garden. The IBC had five outdoor fights, including the Charles-Walcott battle in Chicago, a middle-weight title bout in Detroit and three bouts in New York ballparks. The outdoor fights showed only a small profit. The Jacobs touch and the magnetic name of Louis were missing. The light heavyweight division is best described as stagnant. Champion Freddie Mills of England failed to defend his title. Jake LaMotta of the Bronx, who beat France's Robert Villain in Madison Square Garden on a disputed decision which led to the suspension of a judge and the referee, Harry Ebbets, later won the Middleweight crown. He took the title when Marcel Cerdan of France sustained a shoulder injury in their Detroit bout. The end came after 9 rounds. Just when the middleweight division had aroused boxing interest, Cerdan, the most popular foreign fighter since Georges Carpentier, died with 47 others in an Azores plane crash. Cerdan was on his way here to face LaMotta in a return bout. New York reinstated Rocky Graziano, former champion, and the two-fisted middleweight rallied to knock out a lightweight, Charley Fusari, in the last 56 seconds of a 10-rounder. Welterweight champion Ray Robinson made only one title defense beating Kid Gavilan of Cuba in Philadelphia. Sugar Ray, however, fought 12 non-title bouts, scoring eight knockouts, winning three on decisions and fighting a draw with Henry Brim in Buffalo. Robinson drew suspensions in Texas and Massachusetts for failing to fulfill engagements in those states. Lightweight ruler Ike Williams successfully defended the 135-pound crown twice, stopping Enrique Bolanos in four rounds in Los Angeles and beating Freddie Dawson in 15 at Philadelphia. The latter bout, in which Williams yelled "fix," cost him a $500 fine. The champ said a "friend" telephoned him, saying Williams would lose if the Dawson fight went the limit Williams failed to identify the "friend."

Jest Among Us

Christmas, 1949: What does it mean?

It means a new gentleness in all the world, as all the world gives thanks that once an humble Carpenter dwelt here.

It means peaceful hearts in a time of peace.

It means the ringing of bells, the crunch of snow underfoot, the singing of carols.

It means a day when boys and girls—men and women now, with sons and daughters of their own—come back home to share their gladness with Gramps and Granny.

It means the joy of little children; it means peppermint canes in bulging stockings, glowing lights in green branches, wondrous gifts in gay wrappings; it means a carpet littered with tinsel ribbon and torn paper; it means shouts and laughter and the scamper of busy feet.

It means starched aprons, warm fragrances wafted from the kitchen, and the tinkle and clatter of a great table being made ready.

It means good food and good talk.

It means a happy family gathered 'round the old piano for some Yuletide songs.

It means goodbyes, and a strange stillness in the house.

It means one last hour of contentment before a blazing log.

It means thoughts of others, of the year that is being left behind, of the year that lies ahead.

It means a moment of prayer. This is what Christmas, 1949, means.

Christmas Greetings

There is a spirit that pervades our world during this season. You feel it in the joy of giving gifts... in the offering of wishes to those around you... in the hymns and carols. It is especially necessary, in these times, to spread this spirit to all... to attend the church of our choice and pray that the light of the Lord show us our way once more.

The champ said a "friend" telephoned him, saying Williams would lose if the Dawson fight went the limit Williams failed to identify the "friend."

In non-title bouts, Williams won six decisions, scored one knockout and lost two bouts to welterweight Gavilan in the Garden. Williams also drew a suspension from the NBA for failing to get through with a California fight.

Willie Pep of Hartford, Conn., regained the featherweight title by outpointing Sandy Saddler in a blistering 15-round Garden fight. Pep later stopped Eddie Compo in seven rounds in a title bout.

Manuel Ortiz of California made one bantamweight title defense, defeating Dado Marino in Honolulu. In non-title bouts he lost to Jimmy Cooper in Washington, Henry Davis in Honolulu and Ronnie Clayton in England.

Rinty Monaghan of Ireland lost a non-title bout to Terry Allen of England in London but later, in defense of his title, he and Allen fought a draw in Belfast. In between these clashes, Monaghan defeated Maurice Sandeyron of France in a title fight.

Stock Market Regains Role Of Barometer

By William D. Horgan

New York — The stock market fooled the experts this year by anticipating a business revival when businessmen were glumly weighing the future.

It was the market's first successful attempt since the war to recapture its traditional position as a barometer of the economic future.

At the year-end the stock price level was hovering around the peak of a six-month advance, the longest sustained rise since the days of the war.

Leading issues traded in the stock exchange were quoted at their best prices in one to three years. On average, the market was just about at its 1949 high and only a trifle below the 1948 top.

The rise started in mid-June, the day after the market plunged to a 4½-year low. At mid-year, in

Campbell Dairyman Has Unusual Record

In five out of eight years of dairy herd testing, Franklin Wolf of Campbell county has had a herd average of 400 pounds of butterfat or over. He owns 11 head of registered Holsteins, all females in the herd being raised on the farm. Both artificial breeding and his own sire are used.

Mr. Wolf raises all the grain and roughage needed for his herd, and this year filled a 100-ton silo. His barn is equipped with running water and drinking cups, said S. A. Porter, county agent.

Mr. Wolf was selected to represent the Northern Kentucky Dairy Herd Improvement Association in the state contest sponsored by the National Dairy Products Corporation.

the first phase of the rally, the business outlook was distinctly gloomy.

Industrial production, personal income, retail sales, business loans—all were declining. Unemployment and consumer credit were among the few gauges to rise. Here was the post-war adjustment or recession, people thought, which had been monotonously predicted as just around the corner ever since V-J day.

The adjustment turned out to be the balmy sort of recession. But no one knew that until several months after the market had started its long climb.

The market's reputations as a business barometer neared the vanishing point in recent years. Starting with the crack-up in prices during the last half of 1946, the market guessed wrong with consistent regularity—and a good part of the time didn't bother to guess at all.

For some three years prices jogged along in one of the narrowest grooves in the history of stock trading despite mounting corporation profits, lavish dividends, a prosperous level of overall business activity.

The market's wishy-washy behavior carried through this year up to mid-May. Then from mid-May to mid-June roughly $6,000,000,000 was popped off the market value of all stocks listed on the exchange.

June 14 market the turn in a long road. After that the price level curved up without serious interruption. Trading volume expanded sharply until in recent months a day when turnover dropped below 1,000,000 shares became a rarity.

From the year's low to date the market value of all listed stocks increased by roughly $11,000,000,000.

Just why the turn came in mid-June has been a matter of considerable conjecture in the financial district. Certainly short-term business prospects offered little to stimulate stock buying.

Some observers claimed the market was anticipating the devaluation of the British pound, but the best guess seems to be that pessimism compounded itself once too often. Stock prices, in other words, had dropped to unreasonably low levels, judged by any normal standard of value.

The first effort at recovery were distinctly feeble, investment and speculative demand did not reach aggressive proportions until later in the year. When the advance finally got rolling, though, nothing seemed able to stop it.

Traders had such high hurdles to leap as the coal and steel strikes, which they did with extraordinary agility. Virtually every other sort of news which could be expected to depress stocks was received with aplomb and higher prices.

The news was not uniformly bad, of course, and the future gradually acquired a pleasanter face.

A first-rate prop to demand was Powell Oldham of the Hollingsworth neighborhood, reports an average of 55 cents per pound for his crop of one and one half acres of burley tobacco. Powell had an average yield of near 1400 pounds per acre.

It is getting increasingly important that burley growers get high quality as well as high production. To get high production and good quality use a good root-resistant variety, plenty of good balanced plant food, space plants about 18 inches apart, let tobacco get ripe before cutting, remodel barn for good ventilation, buy coke early to insure against a poor curing season.

The all pullet poultry flock of a luscious flow of special, extra, increased and year-end dividends, a flow of money which included General Motors' record-breaking $4.25 year-end. Corporation profits, too, were holding up — and in many cases expanding — far better than had been expected.

The coal and steel strikes had the effect of practically insuring high production for months to come. Demand deferred by the strikes stretched out months ahead.

Far at the bottom of the props sustaining the market's advance — and possibly the strongest prop of all — was the thought of inflation. When inflation threatens, Wall Street holds, people buy common stocks to protect the purchasing power of their capital.

The potential menace of inflation was unleashed when President Truman revised his estimate of the amount the federal government will operate in the red during the current fiscal year. The figure went up to nearly $6,000,000,000.

127 New Hampshire Red hens owned by Clyde O. Wood beats the standard production of nine eggs per hen by laying an average of nearly eighteen eggs per hen in October. They are now laying at the standard production level of ten eggs per hen a month.

To maintain high production, attention should be given housing to prevent drafts and also to provide ventilation so that moisture won't collect, also there should be plenty of deep litter so that the floor will be dry and will not require cleaning the house more than once or twice annually, feed plenty of a balanced ration and minerals, provide plenty of clean warm water and follow the practice of selling all old hens each year and replace them with early pullets.

SMOKELESS FURNACE

Urbana, Ill. — (AP) — The University of Illinois has a home coal furnace that burns its own smoke. The coal burned includes numerous low-grade fuels that now cannot be burned in many cities, because of anti-smoke regulations.

The furnace is like a U-shaped pipe. Coal is poured into one side. The fire is started at the bottom of the coal. But the fumes do not go up through the coal bed. The draft comes down through the coal. The result is that as the fresh coal gets hot the fumes burn, they are drawn downward.

These gasses are the smoke.

They pass down and around the bottom of the U and start upward on the side opposite the burning coal. The heat is enough to ignite them as they leave the coal bed. A stream of fresh air which enters the furnace at this point enables the smoke to burn completely.

Good Books Wear Well With Young

By Saul Pett

Usually kids don't leap at new books under the Christmas tree. They'll go first for the trains, the big new dolls, the shiny chain. But after the novelty of the other gifts has worn off, they'll come back to their books and stick to them.

So if you're interested in entertaining your youngsters over the long haul, you might consider the great variety of Children's books out this year. Here are some of them, by age groups:

UNDER EIGHT

World Round, by Inez Hogan (Dutton). The very amusing, painlessly instructive story of a whale and a sea lion who swim around the world. The drawings should save you a trip to the zoo. Cocolo Comes to America, by Bettina (Harper). This time the loveable donkey migrates to the United States. The kids will love the big water-color and wash pictures and neither they nor you will miss the warmth of the story. Let's Go Fishing, by K. and B. Jackson (Simon and Schuster). A game book in which the small fry can actually catch something and keep score. The same authors and

Family Appreciates Roads, Electricity

The Ross Martin family of Hatcher Creek in Powell county has responded quickly to the coming of good roads and electricity, says Farm Agent R. D. Silver. The home was wired completely for lights and a new electric range, refrigerator and washing machine bought. Two rooms were added to the house and the entire exterior covered with asbestos shingles. A concrete basement, to be used as a storage and wash room, was finished, and a cistern, also of concrete, was built. A white painted board fence for the yard has been started.

publishers also offer The Big Elephant, in which the hero leaves a circus because he's weary of travelling in undersized berths and builds himself a house.

Tuttle, by Nancy Marohn (Winston). Who says a little truck can't drive in the park? This one carries his case right up to the major.

Picnic Woods, by Lillian Robertson (Harcourt, Brace). Little forest thieves make off with a fox's picnic basket which is only returned to him after a long, amusing chain reaction.

Little-or-Nothing from Nottingham, by Marguerite Henry and Wesley Dennis (Whittlesey House). A pup, falling to sneak into a circus, works his way through.

EIGHT TO TWELVE

Bixxy and the Secret Message, by Louis Slobodkin (Macmillan). The very funny adventures of an army carrier pigeon who stops to pick up peanuts, is grounded but finally manages to prevent a war and save the cinnamon bun industry.

Floesie and Bossie, by Eva La Gallienne (Harper). The famed actress tells the gentle, amusing story of two small Bantam hens who longed to be mothers. One was loving, homely and had an inferiority complex. The other was beautiful, gay and sometimes rather mean.

Nancy Hanks of Wilderness Road, by Meridel Le Sueur (Knopf). The story of Abe Lincoln's mother, told simply and inspiringly. Beautifully illustrated. The Lord Is My Shepherd, arranged and illustrated by Nancy

Pleasant Grove

Narnhart (Scribner's). Bible tales told movingly in modern speech, enhanced by very effective wood-cuts.

Here Come the Perkinses, by Le Grand (Bobbs-Merrill). The adventures of a sea-going family, complete with villains, complications and data on seamanship.

Allie's Adventures in Wonderland and Through the Looking Glass, by Lewis Carroll (Harper). Handsomely bound, a beautifully illustrated in color and black and white, this is one of the year's most attractive children's books.

More Boy, by Lysle Caveth (Longmans, Green). An eight-year-old Philippine boy proves, in the jungles, that he's no coward or weakling.

OVER TWELVE

How Your Body Works, by Herman and Nina Schneider, and Bits That Grow, by Irma E. Weber (both published by Scott). Two interesting, frequently amusing books in which knowledge comes painlessly. One discusses bodily functions, the other tells the story of plant reproductions. Both contain many suggested experiments which youngsters will find instructive and amusing.

Laughing Matter, edited by Helen R. Smith (Scribner's). A long-overdue anthology of humor for young people. Includes stories by Milne and Kipling, interspersed with short, bright poems. Illustrated.

Wrong hand, by Geraldine Wyatt (Longmans, Green). Sixteen-year-old Todd Parrish, facing the reconstruction problems of the south in 1868, fights his way west over the Chisholm Trail.

Harlequin Hallabalo, by Dorothy Lyons (Harcourt, Brace). A young girl's ambitions for her horse finally come true after considerable trouble for both.

Red Planet, by Robert Heinlein (Scribner's). The time, the future; the place, Mars as it is being colonized by earth people. A good adventure tale to make the kids wonder about other worlds.

Pecos Bill, by Harold W. Felton (Knopf). A fabulous cow puncher, to whom the worst cyclones, rattlesnakes, mountain lions and villains are as nothing. Handsomely illustrated.

Shadow of the Hawk, by Geoffrey Tease (Harcourt, Brace). Suspense and adventure in a 16th century hunt for an ancient manuscript.

Curtain Call, by Adele De Leeuw (Macmillan). A talented young lady starts a Little Theater group, fulfills an ambition, finds romance.

Homemakers Lesson Help Remake Kitchen

Mrs. Robert Varvel of Webster county has shown how old equipment can be used to good advantage with new in making a better planned kitchen. Her convenient and attractive room is the result of lessons on storage in the

Among those from here attending the ball game at Sinking Fork Saturday night were Miss Robbie Storms and Mr. and Mrs. Ratliff Rogers.

Mr. and Mrs. Ratliff Rogers visited Mr. and Mrs. Clift Ladd and Mrs. Zora Wilson Sunday afternoon.

Wheatcroft Homemakers Club

She used an old kitchen cabinet by cutting off the legs and setting it on a solid base, then hanging the upper half on the wall. Next she installed a pitcher pump and sink, and replaced the old coal range with a gas stove. Over the latter, Mrs. Varvel hung another cabinet so that she could have handy the equipment and supplies user there. The interior of the white cabinets were painted soft blue to match the blue plaid wall paper.

A clothes closet, built by taking four feet off the length of a too-large bedroom, is Mrs. Varvel's special pride. "I don't see how I ever kept house without it," she said, as she pointed out the dressing table near a window, long rods for hanging clothes, and shelves for bedding, hat boxes, shoes and other articles.

Only about one half of one percent of a modern "tin" can is tin.

GRAVEL COMING DOWN

Los Angeles — (AP) — Miss Helen Taylor combed the gravel out of her hair and told police this tale:

Walking along a sidewalk she saw an upstart truck roll backward when the driver, Henry G. Mihalovich, missed his shift. Gathering momentum the 13-ton gravel carrier careened toward her, snapping off a telephone pole and crunching a lamp post before it slammed into a building beside her.

Miss Taylor, pinned to the wall by a protruding part of the truck, was showered with gravel. She was not injured seriously.

Portable one-man saws, driven by small gasoline engines, have considerably lightened the labor of the lumberman.

A Million More Seek Employment

By Charles Molony

Washington — A growing America enters the new year faced with the problem of providing upward of a million new jobs or seeing unemployment go back to prewar levels.

The year 1949 provided more jobs than any year except boom-time 1948, but employment nevertheless rose sharply because the number of Americans ready for jobs hit an historic high.

To that capsule summary of the situation, government officials added a note of moderate hopefulness on the strength of an apparent rally in job opportunities near the end of 1948.

By early December, Ewan Clague, commissioner of Labor statistics, and Secretary of Commerce Sawyer were seeing the job picture respectively as "more encouraging" and "more favorable" than it had been all year.

Clague cautioned that unemployment in January-February 1950 may surpass 1949's peak of a little over 4,000,000, but added that will be largely seasonal and the usual spring upturn should cut it back.

Census Bureau records show 1949 didn't make the grade on holding down unemployment although it afforded some 60,000-000 jobs on a monthly average—if you count in 1,500,000 in the armed forces along with other 53,500,000 civilians with jobs for one hour or more weekly.

month:
The labor force, which means both those having jobs and those hunting them, grew (along with the population) by 1,203,000 over the 12 months ended with November.

But the 1,203,000 new jobs sought didn't materialize. Instead, the number of existing jobs dropped—by 375,000. Add the persons who missed out and the workers who lost out and you get the increase in unemployment for the 12 months: 1,578,000.

The brunt of the shrinkage in existing jobs fell on factory workers as non-farm jobs dropped by 292,000. The milder, 83,000 decline in farm jobs followed a long-time trend to fewer persons in agriculture.

The 1949 range in job openings was from a seasonal low of 57,168,000 in February to a summer-season high of 59,947,000 in August. It never hit 60,000 civilian jobs, though 1948 had five months above that mark.

Unemployment, which never got above 2,639,000 in 1948, never got that low in 1949. In every month except January, it held above 3,000,000 and in July topped 4,000,000; highest since the war began.

Officials say the unemployment problem could be solved by greater withdrawals from the labor force along with expansion of job opportunities.

That's a big factor in the growth of private pension systems and expanded, increased social security benefits; unemployment has risen most among persons over 45, and the proportion of the population older than that is gaining steadily.

Women job-seekers have had a lot to do with keeping the labor force big—63,815,000 at its mid-summer 1949 peak. Officials see that partly as: (1) an economic matter—desire to add to family income, especially in times of high living costs, and (2) a social trend—more and more women seek careers or financially independent status.

Fredonia Valley

Mrs. Virgil Coleman, assisted by Mrs. J. J. Rogers and Mrs. W. W. Gilliam, was hostess to Fredonia Valley Homemakers Club for its annual Christmas meeting.

The living room and dining room were beautifully decorated. There was a lighted tree of green cedar and red berries, and as each guest arrived, she was given a corsage of green cedar and red berries with a number hidden in the branches for a gift drawing.

The major project was "Pictures With Mats," given by Mrs. Sarah Conway and Mrs. Byrd Guess.

Lunch, buffet style, was served to 16 members and three visitors.

Mrs. Russell Yates gave the devotional and thought for the day. Also games were played and gifts exchanged.

Mrs. Arlie Vinson closed the meeting with prayer.

Botulism In Home Canned Food Said To Cause Death

There have been several recent deaths in Kentucky from botulism, caused by eating home canned food. Botulism, says Mrs. Vance Dugan, Director of the Department of Health's Division of Foods, Drugs and Hospitals, is a disease caused by a toxin which is present in oil, and transferred from the soil to food products. The poison is produced only when food products have been placed in a sealed can or glass jar as is done in the canning of foods by the water bath method. The spores causing the disease can be destroyed by high temperature. Production of poison is prevented by canning food in a pressure cooker, in which the heat is allowed to penetrate to the very center of the food in the container. For many years there have been no reported cases of this type of food poisoning from commercially canned food. Botulism may be caused by any type of food — meat, cheese, vegetables, fruit or fish which has not been properly canned. The disease can be prevented if home canned vegetables, meat or fish are never eaten without having first been boiled for at least 15 minutes after being removed from

Health Director Urges Support Of Annual Seal Sale

Dr. W. L. Cash, Caldwell County Health Officer, urges that everyone help in the control of tuberculosis in Caldwell county by purchasing Christmas seals this month. December is reserved annually for the sale of seals by the National Tuberculosis Association. Money obtained in this way is used for urgently needed medical research, tuberculosis case finding and education of the public about the disease and its control.

In Kentucky the problem of tuberculosis is particularly acute. Last year 1,272 Kentuckians, 6 of them in Caldwell county, died of the disease, and it has been estimated that there are now about 14,000 active cases in the state.

Dr. Tracy Jones, Director of County Health Work of the State Department of Health, stated that he hopes everyone in Kentucky will support the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association's seal sale campaign this year. "Without their help and cooperation," he said, "that phase of our program, (tuberculosis control) would be greatly handicapped." The seal sale will continue through the 25th of this month, giving everyone an opportunity to buy Christmas seals and to remind others of this great health problem and the necessity for its control by using them on letters, Christmas cards and parcels.

May 9, 1930. Miss Lucille Buttermore left Saturday morning the container. This must be done because it is not possible to tell that the food is capable of causing botulism by looking at it or smelling it. If the food is poisonous, even the tiniest amount may cause death. If in doubt about fruits, remove them from the container and boil them. Never eat any canned fruit which shows mold growth, or appears in any way to be abnormal.

Valuable Painting Found In Rubbish

Los Angeles — (AP) — Poking through a rubbish heap paid off for Joseph Padore, a boilermaker with artistic leanings.

He turned up a painting identified as a 250-year-old work by an Italian artist, Vincenzo Oleotti. Phil Bernay, Los Angeles art dealer engaged to restore the picture, said it is a copy of a masterpiece done in 1600 by Andrea Del Sarto, which now hangs in the Palazzo Pitti museum in Florence. It depicts the Holy Family.

Bernay estimated the painting to be worth at least $2,000 and theorized that it was discarded by a family unaware of its worth. The colors, he said, have retained their original richness and warmth. The finder, Padore, is a painter himself and has done a mural for his church.

A Contempt Sentence Without Jury Trial

By Clarke Beach
Washington — A lot of lawyers recently have been sentenced to jail without a jury trial. Federal judges decided they were guilty of contempt of court and gave them from one to six months in the cooler.

The cases bring out a point which most laymen don't realize: That although the Constitution in two places says that a defendant in a criminal case shall have a right to a trial by jury, there are still a lot of ways he can be imprisoned without getting a chance to tell his story to a jury.

The big contempt cases now pending are those resulting from the Harry Bridges trial in San Francisco and the trial of the 11 Communists in New York. The judges convicted seven defense attorneys of improper conduct in court—harrasing, delaying tactics, tending to embarrass the judge and impede the trial. The lawyer in the Bridges case, Vincent Hallinan, was sentenced to six months, to be served when the trial was completed. Six attorneys involved in the New York case, one of them a defendant who was acting as his own lawyer, were sentenced to from one to six months. Their appeal is pending.

When a federal judge decides a person is guilty of contempt of court, he can fine or imprison him without indictment or even a hearing. There is no limit to the length of the sentence or the amount of the fine, as long as the punishment is not unreasonable, cruel or unusual. The law varies among the state courts, but most of them follow the federal practice to a large extent.

The power of a court to punish for contempt is as old as the history of law. You couldn't get orderly administration of justice if attorneys and others in the court

Learns To Sew In Homemakers Club

When Mrs. Nelson Kennedy of Christian county joined the St. Elmo Homemakers Club, of which she is now president and clothing leader, she had no idea how practical the results would be.

She not only makes her own clothes, but she has made slipcovers, draperies and curtains for her entire house.

A tweed coat made in a tailoring school under the direction of Miss Dorothy Threlkeld, clothing specialist from the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Kentucky, cost only $35, yet she feels $75 would be a modest retail price. Eighteen other garments she made included suits, dresses and coats. Home sewing is not only a means of saving money, she told Home Agent Mary Ellen Murray, but is a way to get better quality for the money spent.

As a result of her success in home sewing, Mrs. Kennedy has been employed in a retail store to teach tailoring and other sewing.

could persist in disturbing and delaying the proceedings and making the judge look like a fool. And if the judge had to start complicated legal processes, including a jury trial, each time he found someone guilty of contempt, it would be possible to delay the completion of a trial indefinitely. Also there is no need for a jury to determine the facts, since the judge witnessed the offense.

There are, in fact, a lot of ways a person can be legally imprisoned without a jury trial. In military courts, for instance. And in prosecutions for petty offenses which were deemed petty at the time the Constitution was adopted.

The question of how far a judge should go in convicting someone for contempt is a live issue. Legal scholars are debating it. The Supreme Court has given split decisions several times when the matter was brought before it. A chief complaint is about the vagueness of the legal definition of contempt. It is felt that the limits of contempt should be closely and clearly defined, since it is an exception to the great principle that trial by jury is essential to due process of law.

A famous case, Fisher versus Pace, was decided by the Supreme Court early this year. Five of the justices upheld a Texas judge who convicted a lawyer for contemptuous conduct during a trial. Four justices dissented, criticizing the judge for acting in a fit of temper. Justices Douglas and Black, dissenting, said the power to punish for contempt in open court "must be narrowly confined, lest it become an instrument of tyranny."

Kentucky On Top For Fourth Year

By Frank Eck

New York — When you talk of basketball in 1949 you're talking about Kentucky. Adolph Rupp's Wildcats went through their fourth straight Southeastern Conference campaign unbeaten and won the National Collegiate AA crown for the second straight year.

The Kentucky boys — Alex Groza, Cliff Baker, Wah Wah Jones and Ralph Beard — were so adept at hitting the hoop that they organized their own professional team and joined the pro league as the Indianapolis representatives. Groza, at 6-foot-7, was the big star of the team. Kentucky beat the Oklahoma Aggies, 46-36, in the NCAA final at Seattle.

Loftman, proved the surprise of the season by winning the 12th annual invitation tournament in Madison Square Garden. In the final, the Frisco five beat Loyola of Chicago 48-47.

The Minneapolis Lakers, paced by 6-foot-nine George Mikan, beat Washington for the Basketball Association of American championship while the National League crown went to the Anderson, Ind., Packers.

At the end of the campaign the BAA merged with the National League and the circuit began 1949-50 operations with three divisions and a 17-team league.

All they need now are enough fans to sit through games in which 170 to 200 points are the rule rather than the exception.

Four-State Winner Prepares 1,053 Meals

A record of preparing 1,053 meals for her family the past year was one of the reasons Miss Sara Elizabeth Neal, 15-year-old girl from Johnson county, was named state foods champion. As a result she was given a trip to Chicago to attend the National 4-H Club Congress.

With the exception of the time spent at 4-H Week in Lexington and at district 4-H camp, Miss Neal was responsible for family meals three times a day. Some of the foods she made were yeast breads, rolls, sponge and butter cakes, pies, salads and salad dressings.

In addition to being state foods champion, this 4-H'er has been district champion in gardening and poultry and has carried projects in clothing, labor service, canning and leadership.

Meade Schools To Teach Homemaking

A home economics department in the new wing of the Meade County High School is the result of efforts of several agencies in the county, including the 16 home-makers clubs. In Flaherty school, too, this course has been added, making homemaking instruction in school available for the first time in the county.

An electric refrigerator at the county high school and sewing equipment for the school at Flaherty were bought by the women, said Home Agent Alice M. Pile. Included in the list of items to meet sewing needs were an electric iron, ironing board, full length mirror and pinking shears.

Through auctions of bulbs, shrubs and potted plants, the Brandenburg Homemakers Club made $78, while the Buck Grove club made $28 by serving dinner to families of its members, followed by an evening of entertainment. Other clubs had white elephant sales, package sales and other means of raising their share.

COP DIRECTS STORK

Washington — (AP) — Policeman Clifton Panciera was directing traffic. A woman came up and told him her daughter was about to have a baby.

Panciera tried to flag a cab to take her to the hospital. But they were all full. So he gave a boy a dime to telephone for an ambulance.

He went to the home and found the baby was due to arrive any minute, which it did, with Panciera doing "what they told me in rookie school."

Best Wishes for Christmas

As all hearts echo and re-echo the joyous words "Merry Christmas", we wish to join in the spirit of the season and add our greetings to all the rest. And may the New Year bring you every happiness, too!

Business, Near Peak, Hangs In Delicate Balance

By Harry T. Montgomery
New York — (AP) — The American economy weathered a mild recession in 1949, then picked up to close the year on a generally prosperous level expected to continue well into 1950.

We enter the new year delicately balanced between inflation and deflation, with business being done at a rate not far below our all-time record highs of 1948. A strong push toward either more inflation or further deflation could bring the trouble we avoided during the gentle dip which came in the middle of the year.

Most observers expect prices in 1950 to be a little lower but to remain generally firm. Personal income should remain high, but probably will continue 1949's gentle slide away from the 1948 record peak.

The factors which helped us over the mid-1949 recession are expected to sustain us through at least the first months of 1950. Among these are a general pick-up abroad, business caution and resulting low inventories at home, high activity in the automobile and construction industries, and a high level of spendable income in the hands of the public.

The threat of further inflation lies in the sustained rise in the public debt and the general cheapening of money accompanying it; the chief deflationary factor is the unusually long life of our post-war boom and the threat of a sudden drying up of consumer demand.

The role of the federal government in the tug-of-war between inflation and deflation is great. Government spending, a prop under much of our nation's business, is not likely to be cut far in 1950, a politically-important year of Congressional elections.

We entered 1949 already tapering off from the 1948 peaks in nearly all lines of activity. Gross national product in the final quarter of 1948 was running at an annual rate of $270,000,000, and dropped steadily during the year to around $250,000,000 for the last quarter of 1949. A further but smaller decline is generally forecast for 1950.

National income, at a high annual rate of $234,000,000,000 as 1949 opened, declined to an estimated $215,000,000,000 a year later. Here too the forecasts are for only a slightly lower level in 1950.

The Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial production was 187 in January and declined to a low of 163 in July, climbed again to around 175 in the early fall as the country pulled out of its recession, and, then dipped again to around 165 under the impact of the steel strike. An average of forecasts would put it between 170 and 180 for 1950.

Corporate profits after taxes declined during 1949 from an annual rate of $20,900,000,000 to around $12,000,000,000. Further decline is anticipated for 1950, but not so steep as in 1949.

Prosperity of the steel, automobile and construction industries is both a reason for and a reflection of the country's general welfare. Steel production began to slide in April from its all-time record peaks, then began to rise again in August and September.

Pancho Fools Experts; Kramer, Gussie In News

By Frank Eck
New York — Jack Kramer, Richard (Pancho) Gonzales and lace panties drew the tennis raves during the year.

Kramer experienced little difficulty proving he is the best tennis player in the world.

Gonzales proved he was the world's top amateur by retaining the national singles title and thereby fooling the experts. He also won the national indoor and clay court crowns. He stepped out of his class, however, when he turned professional. As a pro he figured to make a reported $60,000 in less than a year. Pitted against the skill of Kramer, Pancho lost 26 of the first 33 matches.

The panties with the two-inch lace trim belonged to Gertrude (Gorgeous Gussy) Moran of Santa Monica, Calif. Her attire made the headlines during the Wimbledon championships. However, it didn't help her tennis. She bowed out in the third round, losing to a Chinese ballet dancer.

Gonzales, 21-year-old Mexican-American from Los Angeles, became the fifth player in history to overcome a two-set deficit in the final to win the nationals. He beat Ted Schroeder, now the No. 1 amateur, 16-18, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4. Later in Los Angeles he beat Schroeder again, 6-3, 9-11, 8-6, 6-4.

"I win the big ones," Gonzales shouted. But he couldn't match Kramer. At one city, Gonzales was so peeved at his misfortune against Kramer that he took one of the station wagons used by the touring pros and drove alone to the next city. The rest of the pros had to cram in the other vehicle. Kramer taught Pancho a lesson by blasting him off the court in their next meeting.

Schroeder was the male toast at Wimbledon. He won four five-set matches in England, beating Jaroslav Drobny of Czechoslovakia in the final.

Drobny and Vladimir Cernik defied the Czechs' Communist regime in the only international tennis rhubarb of the year. Their government ordered them to be.

The steel strike cut off production through all of October and part of November, meanwhile building up a backlog of orders which will keep the industry busy well into 1950. The outlook is strong.

The automobile industry, in some instances still working on demand created by war-born shortages, built more automobiles than ever before in history, topping the six-million mark in December and exceeding considerably the previous record production of 5,338,420 cars in 1929. Automobile makers look for another good year in 1950, although total figures probably will be under those of 1949.

Final figures for home building in 1949 may well set an all-time record, industrial building may be a shade under 1948, and public works activity was about 25 per cent higher than in 1948. The booming construction industry enters 1950 with prospects of another year of high volume.

The nation's employment picture brightened at the end of 1949 after causing some concern at mid-year. Unemployment hit a high of over 4,000,000 in July, but was down to 3,409,000 in November. The November, 1949 figure was 1,831,000. Total employment was climbing slightly at year-end, and was at about the same figure, something under 60,000,000, of a year before.

withdraw from a Swiss tournament. They defied the Czech order to return to Prague, announcing they would seek a haven in the United States.

The U. S. Davis Cup team beat Australia for the fourth straight year. Gonzales and Schroeder both won two singles tests. Australia, however, had the top doubles combination in John Bromwich and Billy Sidwell. They scored as a team in the Davis Cup and also in the national doubles.

In women's tennis, Mrs. Margaret Osborne duPont of Wilmington, Del., retained her national singles crown and, with Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., as a partner, continued as doubles champion.

Maureen Connolly, 14, of San Diego, became the youngest player ever to win the national girls' crown. Experts say the high school student is the coming women's champion.

In the Wightman Cup matches, the U. S. beat Great Britain, 7-0, for its 13th straight over the British.

Magazine Tells Why Locusts Fly Hairline

London — (AP) — Locusts have queer short hairs on their heads which give them directions when flying. This discovery is reported in "Nature", the official British science journal, by T. Weis-Fogh, of Gentofte, Denmark. The hairs are queer because they do not vibrate in the wind as do other hairs on a locust. These merely bend. Something in their structure prevents fast waving motions. By the angle at which these hairs bend a locust knows how much he is turning away from a straight line. When he is flying straight the wind bends the hair straight back.

Cornerstone Laid For U. K. Building

The cornerstone of the University of Kentucky's new Service building, a structure expected to be ready for occupancy by next July, was laid last week by U. K. President H. L. Donovan and members of the board of trustees. A three-story, red brick building, it replaces one destroyed by fire in February, 1946. It will house the University's Division of Maintenance and Operations and provide archive space for the library. Financed entirely by revenue bonds, the building is being constructed at no cost whatever to the state's taxpayers. It is the fourth major building project begun at the University since the end of World War II.

ORIGIN OF RADIO TUBE

New York — (AP) — The radio vacuum tube in its present-day guise is the result of the work of many scientists. But in its early history three names stand out. They are Thomas A. Edison, who in 1883 discovered the basic principle of the tube; John Ambrose Fleming of England, first to develop the detector tube; and Dr. Lee DeForest, who in 1906 improved the tube to the stage that opened the development of the modern radio and television systems.
